

Learn More About Your Genealogy!

Finding Female Ancestors Presented by Dr. Dolores Fidishun January 30, 2023 1:00 PM

Who were your female ancestors and how do you find information about them? Many women had at least two names and you will not always find the same types of records for them that you find for your male ancestors. We will look at information that can help you find out more about the women in your family and how you can use general family records as well as things like census records, marriage records, and newspapers to get to know your female family members and, through them, their side of the family.

Organizing and Saving your Genealogy Records Presented by Dr. Dolores Fidishun February 6, 2023 1:00 PM

You have found wonderful records about your family but how do you manage your family tree and save copies of records so they are safe and easily accessible? This session will cover various programs that will help you track your family tree, how you might use online trees, let you know where to get copies of blank genealogy forms, and discuss ways of displaying and safely storing your family history so it is easily accessible and usable.

This is part of our Computer Instruction Class which is ongoing every Monday at 1:00pm.
